

Public Access Computers

Conditions of Use

- Membership of Ryde Library Service is required and a current membership card is needed to book and commence a computer session.
- An exception to the above is made for travellers or visitors who will need to provide suitable identification with permanent address details.
- Maximum of two one hour sessions per day, per person.
- Computers are free to use but fees apply for printing.
- Basic knowledge of computers and the Internet is assumed. Staff will only offer basic assistance.
- The privacy of other users should be considered at all times, with a maximum of two people sharing one computer at a time.
- The computers must not be used for any obscene, offensive or harassment purposes, nor for any activity of an illegal, actionable, defaming or fraudulent nature, including copyright infringement. The viewing and/or display of obscene or offensive material constitutes unacceptable behaviour.
- The Library does not accept responsibility for the accuracy of information on the Internet or for any consequences that may arise from the use of that information.
- The Library cannot guarantee that access to the Internet will be available at all times due to possible unexpected network downtime, software or PC problems.
- The Library is not responsible for any loss or damage caused by computer viruses or other malicious or faulty software.
- Any Internet activity undertaken through the Library's facilities is the responsibility of the user, and in the case of children, the parent or guardian.
- Whilst filtering software has been used and some offensive or insecure sites have been blocked, it is not possible to completely prevent access to inappropriate, offensive or insecure sites.
- All library users must comply with the directions of library staff concerning use of equipment and behaviour in the public space.
